What Does This Mean?

It means that someone has worked very hard. They have studied.

They have achieved. It means someone will be proud.

It is worn on a day like no other. It means that someone is ready to go into the world and find a good job, be a productive person, live a good life. And so it goes.

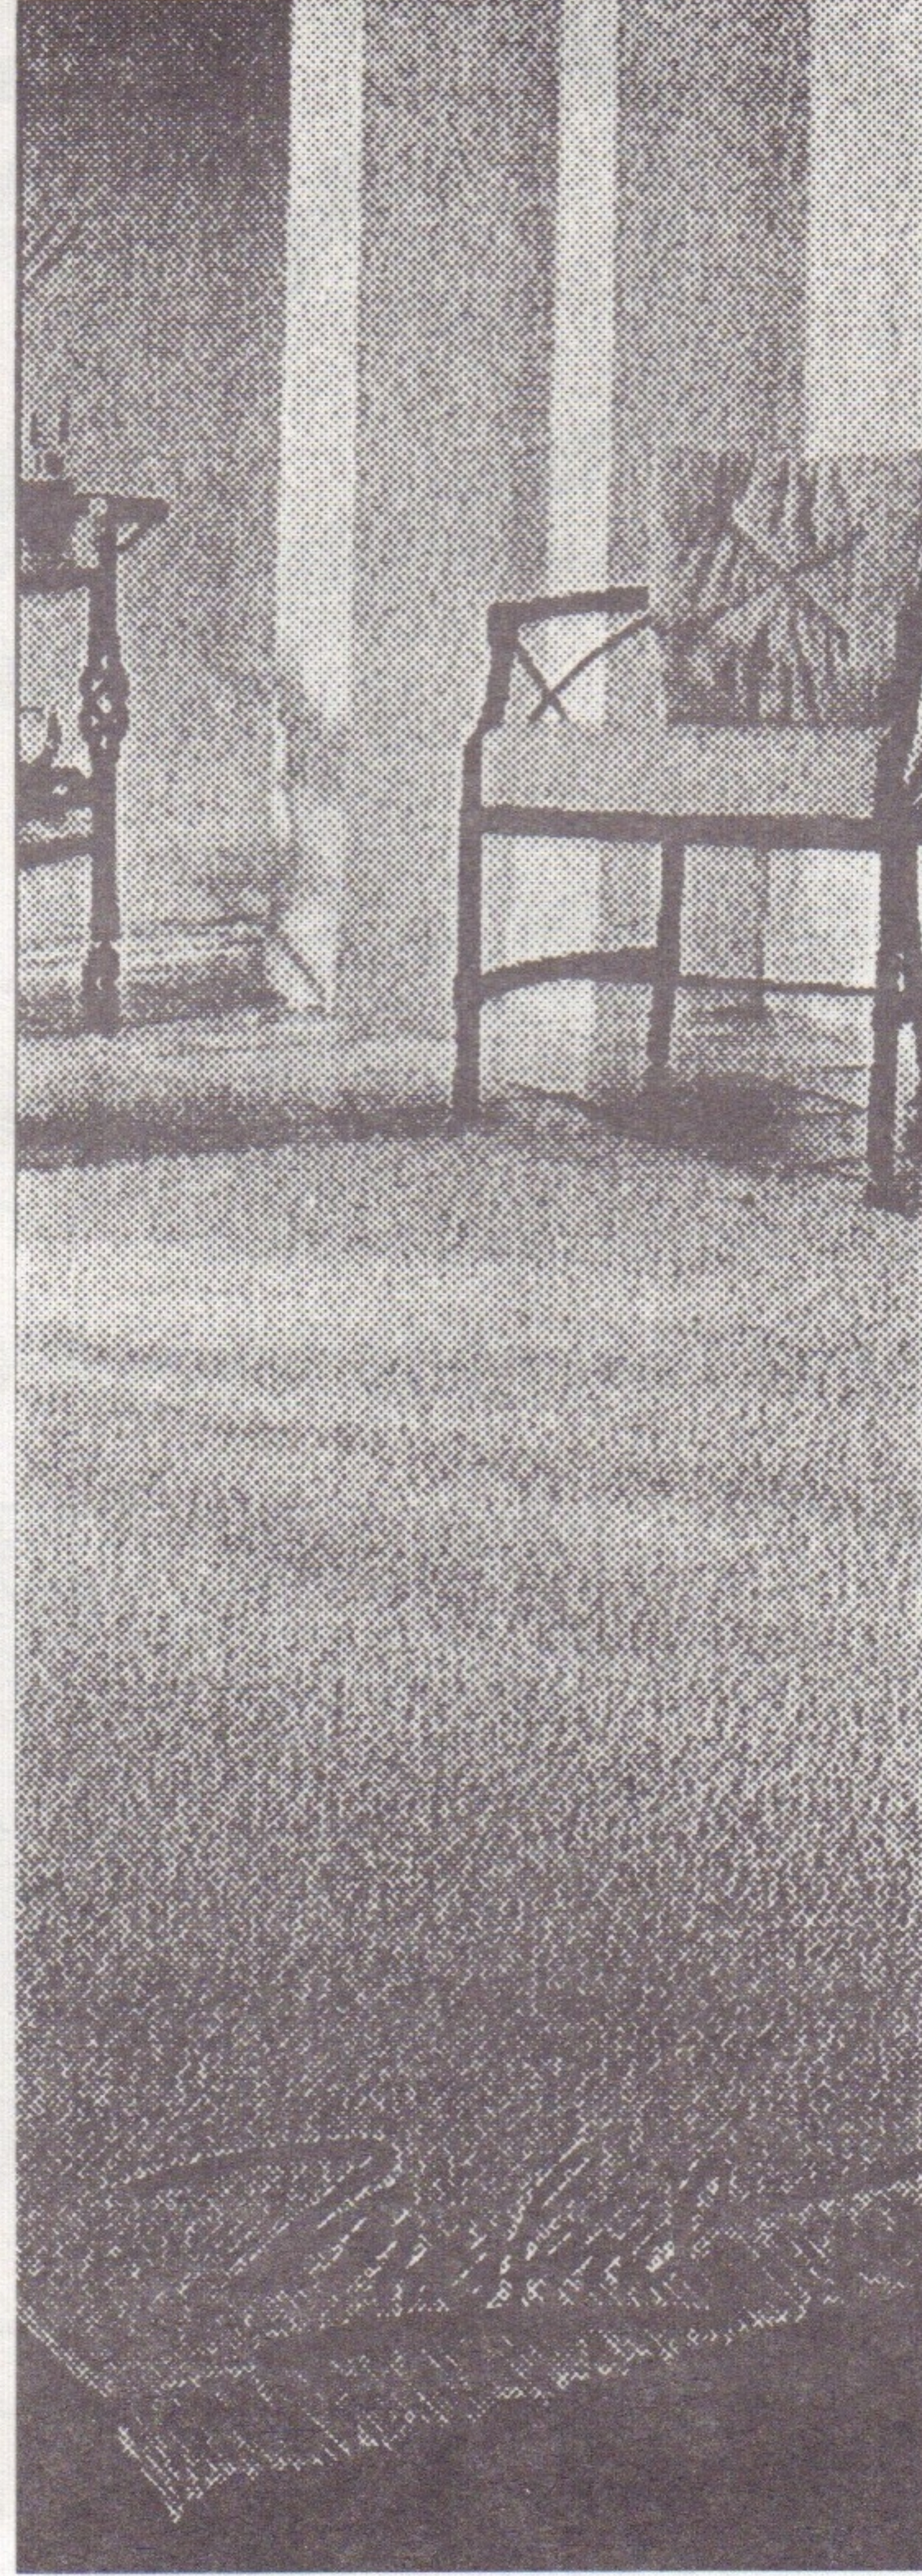

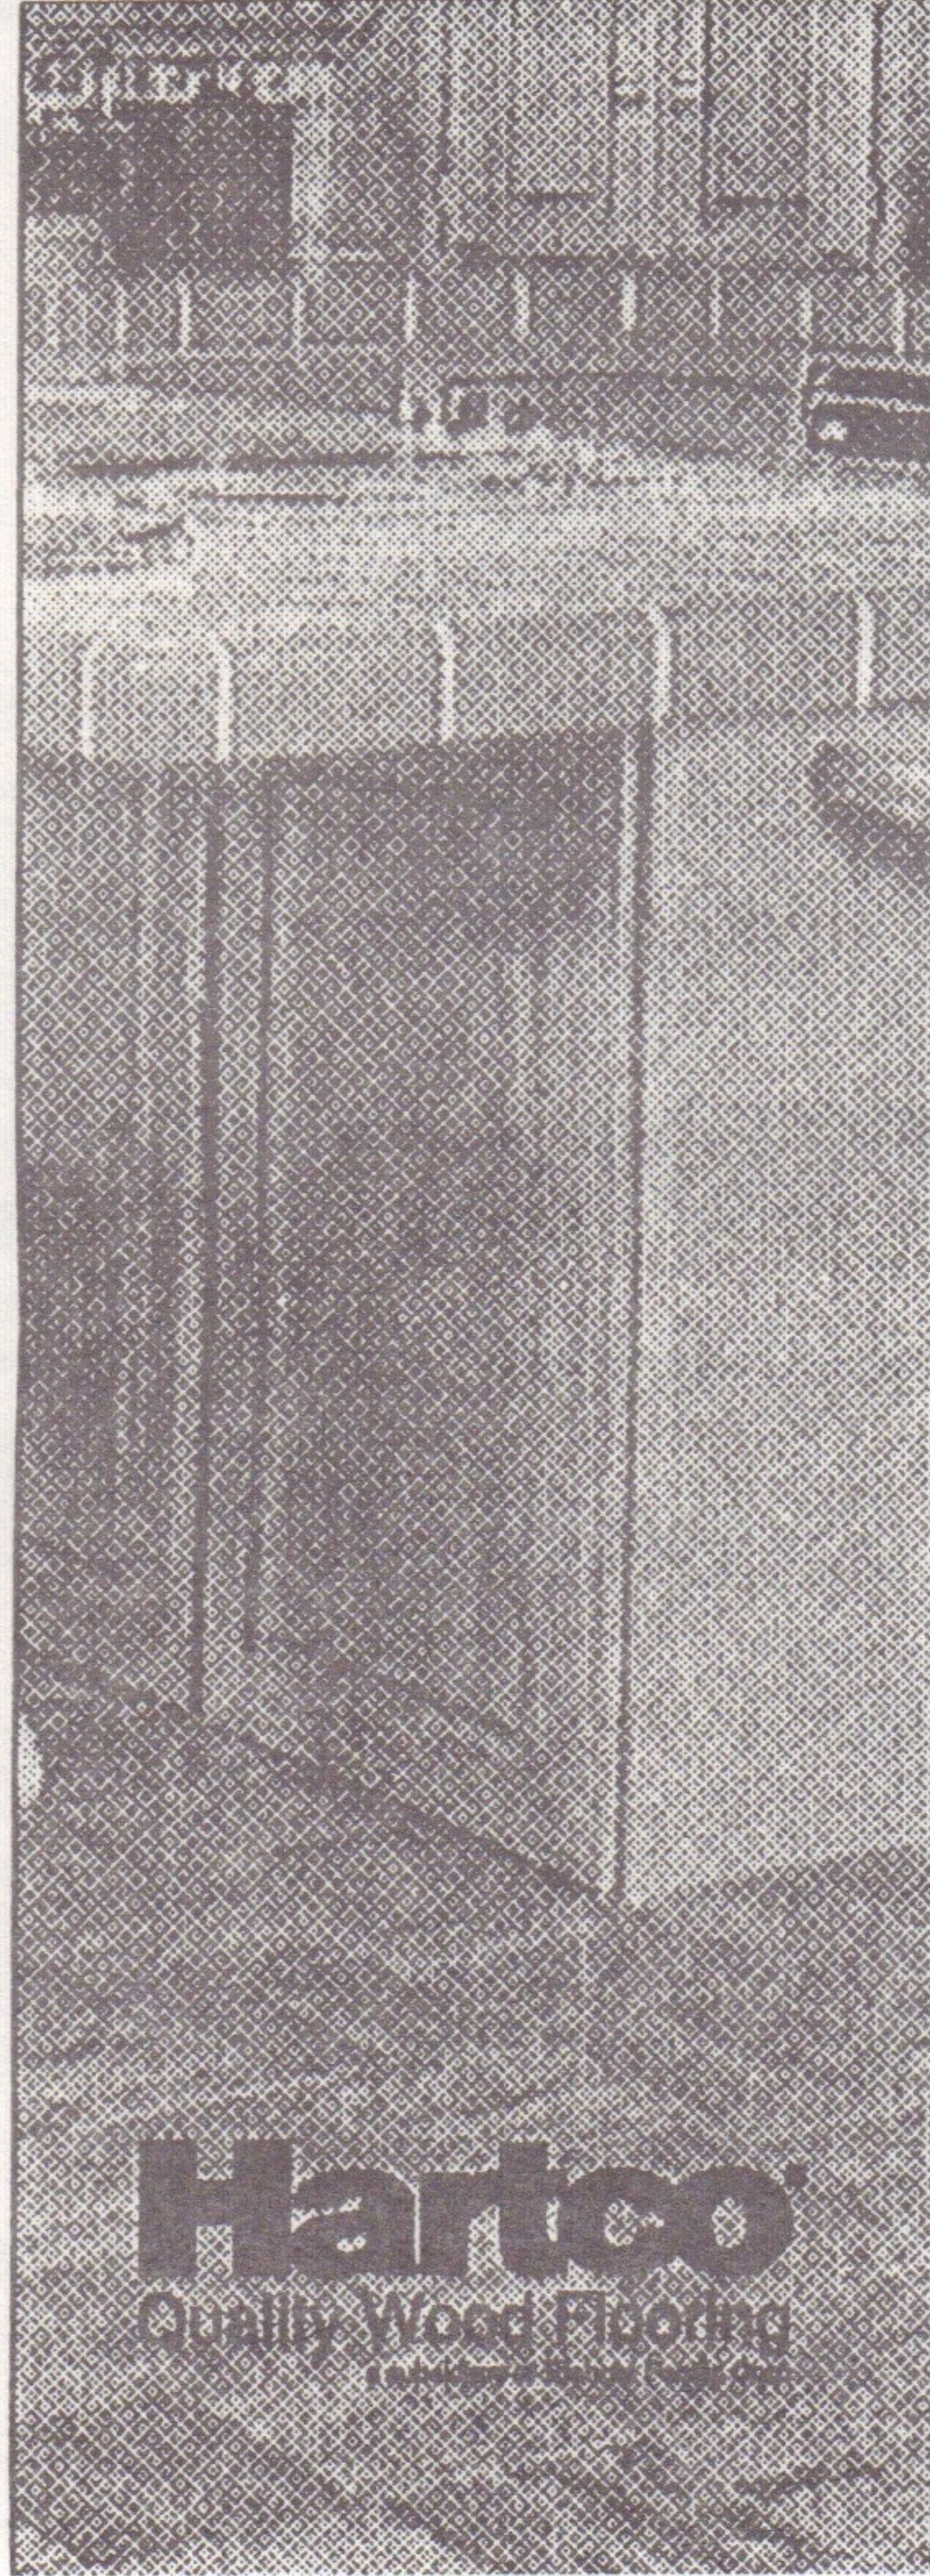

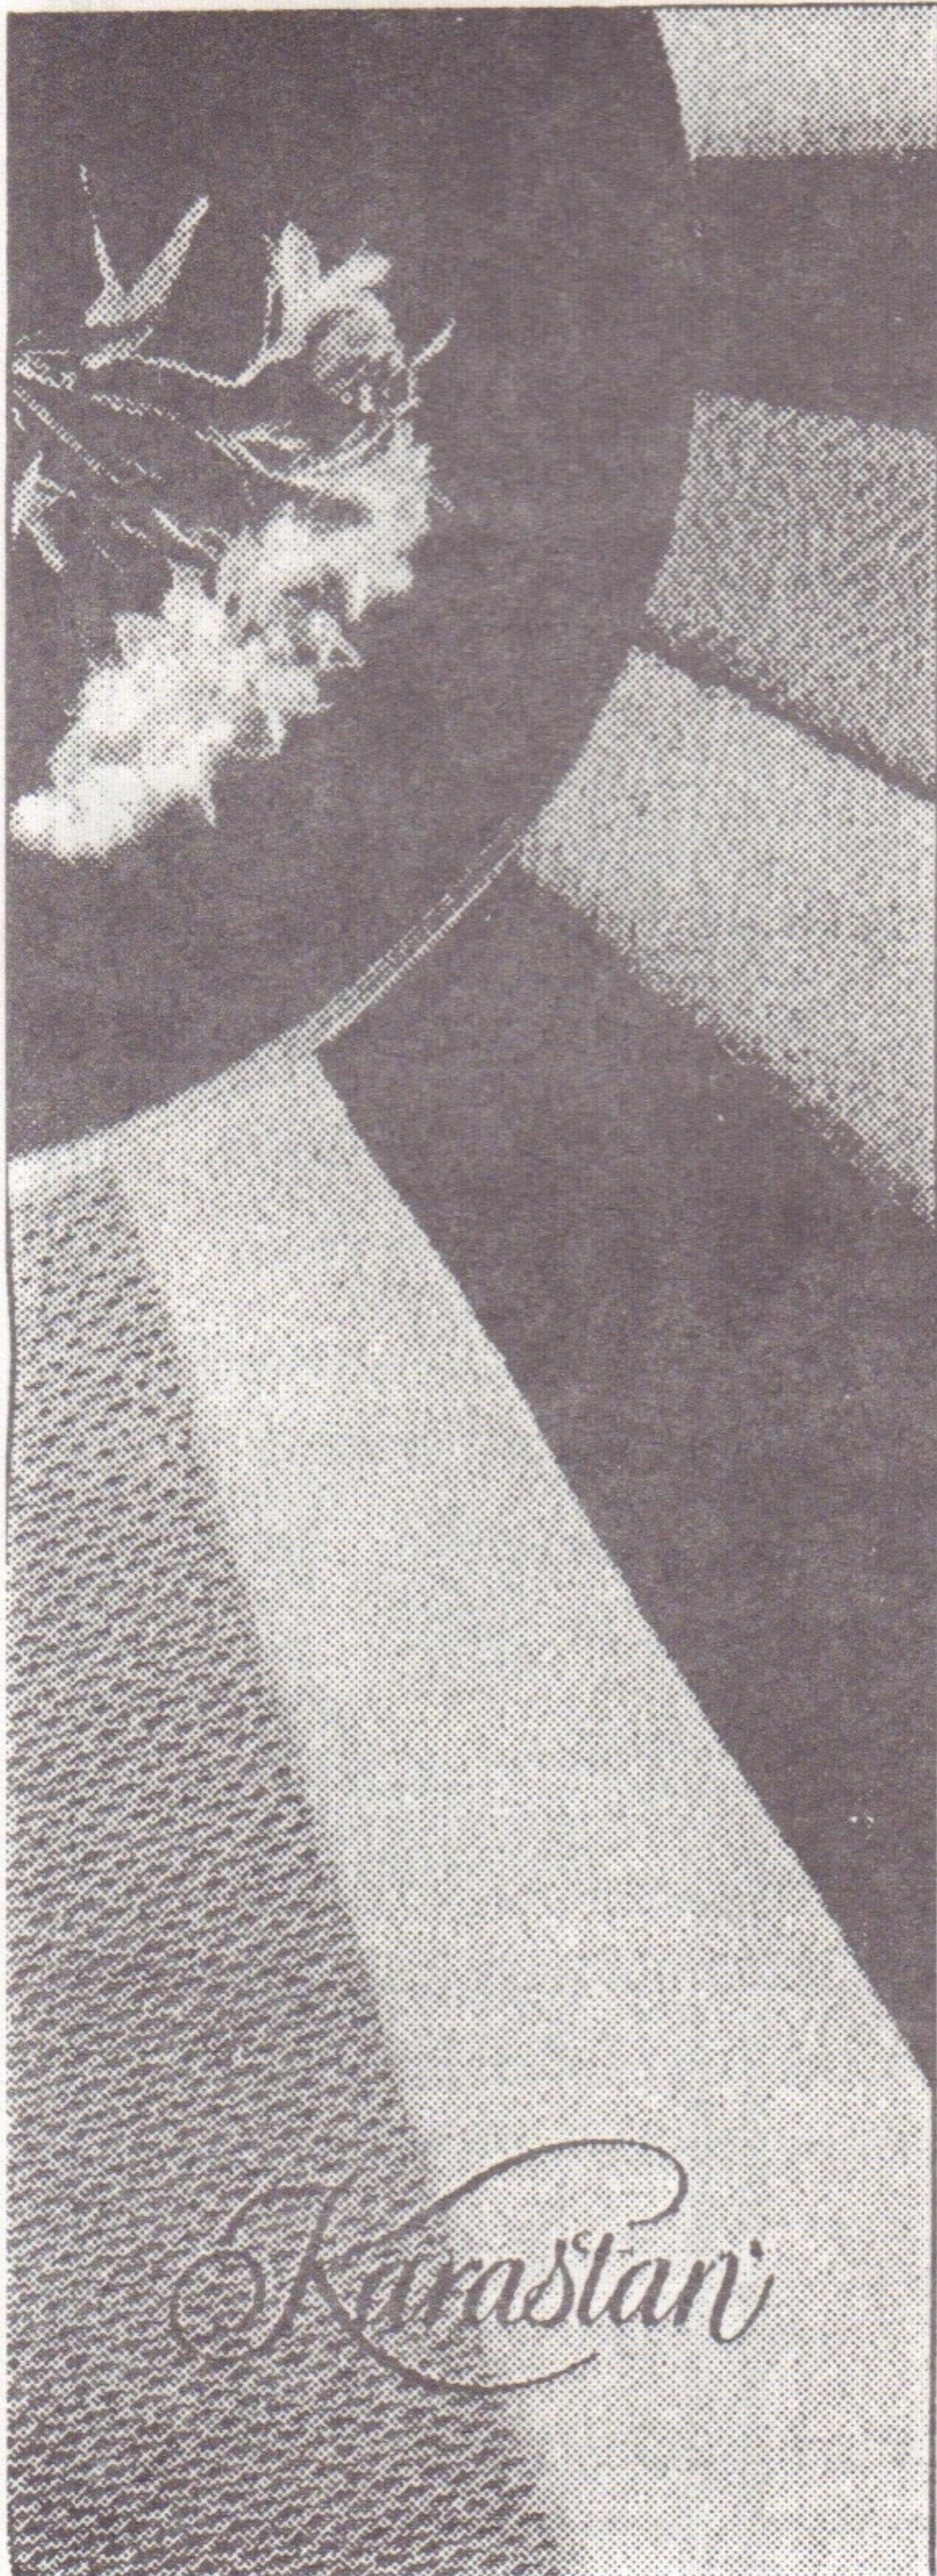

It means that The Tuscaloosa News has made a contribution to the future of many. We do so with pride by supporting the Shelton State Community College Foundation.

You've spent much of your working life making sure that your business continues to thrive, keeping pace with the times.

And at some point, that means handing over the reins and the responsibility to the next generation.

But how do you make the transition in a way that your family business will still find success in the years to come?

At Jamison, Money, Farmer & Co., P.C., we've been helping families keep their business traditions alive for more than three generations.

We can assist your business in it's next step -- whether it's around the corner or on the other side of the world.

*Let us help your family business
stay in the family.*
